GRAND ARMY MEN GREATLY AROUSED

Over Outrageous Treatment Given Old Soldiers by Wilson's Administration.

(SPECIAL TO THE TELEGRAM)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—Grand Army veterans throughout the country have been aroused to action by the discharge of old soldiers from the government service in Washington. On the heels of dismissals of veterans who had served the government faithfully in the Washington City post-office for years, came President Wilson's declaration of the invitation to deliver the Memorial Day address at Arlington national cemetery, where so many thousands of the "boys of '61" lie sleeping.

President Wilson's last-minute recall of his declaration, after Speaker Clark, his political enemy, had agreed to make the speech, has fallen very short of satisfying the old soldiers. Evidently, they are up in arms with all their old fighting blood aroused over these two slaps in the faces of the Union veterans.

The feeling in Grand Army circles over what the veterans regard as scant courtesy on the part of President Wilson on Memorial Day and the dismissal of veterans from the Washington postoffice would seem to be growing greater instead of smaller. Washington Gardner, of Albany, N. Y., the national commander of the Grand Army, is in Washington in support of Dr. J. K. Gleason, commander of the department of the Potomac, who has made a valiant fight for the reinstatement of the veterans dismissed. Word has been flashed to all the old veterans of the country to hold themselves in readiness to defend themselves from further attacks of the Democratic administration.

In spite of protests to President Wilson, old veterans have been told to go, and threatened with dismissal if they did not resign. The treatment accorded these old men, who have given faithful service, has brought a flood of telegrams for senators and Representatives in Congress, and the end is not yet. Some reinstatements, out of fear of the political effect of these dismissals, may be expected, but veterans say that will not satisfy the affront which was given the Grand Army of the Republic.

In a speech at a mass meeting, in Washington, a few nights ago, in which senators, representatives in Congress and private citizens joined with the veterans in protest against the dismissal of veterans, Commander-in-Chief Gardner said the question was not a local one, but one that reached all over the country.

Catarrh is Often Deep Seated

Local Congestions May Indicate Much Internal Inflammation.

Just because catarrh affects the nose and throat, few people realize how deep-seated it may be until it creeps into the bronchial tubes and settles down into the lungs. The way to treat catarrh is to recognize the fact that it is in the blood.

And there is only one blood purifier that can be safely used. It is S. S. S., the most powerful, the most searching, the most assimilative blood remedy known today, for it is not a mineral, but a vegetable remedy. The medicinal components of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well-balanced health as the nutritive properties of the grains, meats, sugars and fats of foods. Any local irritating influence is the blood is rejected by the tissue cells and eliminated by reason of the stimulating influence of S. S. S.

You will soon realize its wonderful influence by the absence of headache, a decided clearing of the air passages, a steadily improved nasal condition, and a sense of bodily relief that proves how completely catarrh often infects the entire system. You will find S. S. S. on sale at all drug stores. It is a remarkable remedy for any and all blood affections, such as eczema, rash, lupus, tetter, psoriasis, boils, and all other diseased conditions of the blood. For special advice on any blood disease write Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Co., 532 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Carefully avoid any and all substitutes for S. S. S. There is nothing "just as good."

UPON POLITICS BUSINESS NOW IS DEPENDENT

Instead of Economic Factors, Vanderly Tells New York State Bankers.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 12.—In an address today before the New York Bankers' Association in annual convention here, Frank A. Vanderly, president of the National City Bank of New York, analyzed the business situation of the day, holding that it had become dependent upon political rather than economic factors.

In part he accepted President Wilson's diagnosis of a "psychological" trouble in business.

Fears Unfounded.
"I believe," he said, "that the lack of enthusiasm about the future, the state of pessimism that surrounds many phases of business, the disposition toward extreme conservatism, the lack of new plans for capital expenditure for railway improvement and extension, for new industrial conquests, all have their roots in a state of mind, rather than in the statistics of actual business data; but I am not certain that this state of mind is grounded in unfounded fears, that it is caused by legislative ghosts, that it is engendered by baseless apprehension concerning legislative tendencies and the trend of public opinion."

"The obstacles in the way of business recovery may perhaps be truly described as psychological, and still be a manifestation of sound business sense in apprehending the true meaning of the political-economic situation."

He described the standards that used to prevail in the judging of the business future—statistics of production and distribution, condition of the money market, and of credit, crop outlook, etc.

"Now," he said, "the Congressional Record is crowding out of its place of importance The Financial Chronicle. We watch executive and congressional actions rather than the comptroller's abstract to gauge the status of banking affairs. The attitude of mind of the Interstate Commerce Commission has become more important than the statistics of railroad traffic. We read the totals of our foreign trade to learn the effect of changed tariff law, rather than of trade tendencies. Reports of the attitude of mind of the attorney general vie in interest with the crop predictions of the secretary of agriculture. Investigations by bureaus, commissions or Congress form a more important feature in gauging market outlook than do the plans for development or expansion formulated by the executive committees of corporations. Plans for development or expansion of railroads or business enterprises have indeed been heard of but little. The factors that we have mostly in mind are how new laws are going to work; what is the prospect, not of crops, but of congressional action."

Bumper Crops.
"If such psychological factors could be eliminated for a moment and the old view taken, we would see looming large the prospect of a great agricultural yield, giving promise in some directions of bumper crops now almost assured."

"We would see easy money here and abroad, and although we might argue that money was easy because of a lack of profitable employment, still its present ease would promise that there would be no interference with increased business activity on the score of interest rates."

"We would note that we were embarked on the trial of a new banking system, about which—whatever point of disagreement there might be—there was the unanimous opinion that its working would ultimately tend toward inflation, and therefore that it will for some time to come be a factor or likely to insure continued easy money."

"We would find sound credit conditions, both in the position of the banks and in the mercantile community."

"The industrial machine of the nation, in short, might be likened to a great steam engine, running with a load much lighter than its capacity, and ready, upon the turn of a valve that would let in more steam to respond efficiently to vastly greater requirements."

Not Altogether Wrong.
"I do not want to be understood as believing that this state of the public mind, this quality of public opinion, is altogether wrong. The basis that is back of the demand for legislative restriction and control of business, I believe to be in large measure made up of sound economic facts. The development of industrialism within our lifetime has been of such a revolutionary character as naturally and rightly to create a demand for a body of controlling laws, such as were never dreamed of by our fathers."

"Legislation in accordance with sound economic principles, formulated with justice and sincere human sympathy, is what we should all be striving for."

"It seems to me time that we recognized and caught step with this wider spirit, and then endeavor to direct the movements which it has set in motion, rather than to obstruct its expression, which finds a form in new or proposed legislation."

We have heard much of the desirability of not mixing politics and business. Why should we not mix politics and business? What greater duty have you to perform than to give the best you have of wisdom and judgment to the direction of political currents; and to give your wisdom and judgment effectively, not merely to stand aside in the role of dissatisfied critics, but rather by getting truly and effectively into the organization and machinery of political life.

Business Unrepresented.
"Today business is practically unrepresented in Congress. Wealth, even success, is felt so to militate against a man in public life as practically to exclude him from preferment. While I would urge business men more and more to recognize the rights of others, I would urge them quite strongly and justly to appreciate their own rights and to see that others recognize them."

"We have no reason to be ashamed of being business men; we have great reason to be proud of it. We have that right, and it will be far better for this country as a whole if we exercise it by demanding intelligent and able representation of business interests in Congress. I believe that business men should insist upon that; should organize to accomplish it."

"I would so organize the business men of the whole country that blather-skites in Congress may be held up in their true light to the public. I would openly go into the district of a demagogue and either defeat him or prove that the public of that district wanted to be represented by a known demagogue."

"The conduct of business is vastly more ethical than the public believes it to be. Our task is to inform the public of the truth, and when that is done, I, for one, will trust the public to reach an honest conclusion, but if we are to have a public truly informed about business matters, business men must make united efforts to that end."
